

February Meeting:
Craigslist & E-Bay
Presented by: GARY COY

Volume III (New Series), Issue 2 — February 2013

7:00 P.M. at the Regional Service Center, 4801 Springfield Street — Click here for a map.

FREE LOCAL CLASSIFIED ADS! That describes the Craigslist revolution. Classifieds were once the most profitable sections of daily newspapers, but that has changed. However, there is a more sinister side to Craigslist. People advertise “services” that no newspaper will publish. Not a month goes by that we don’t read about an assault, robbery, or murder where victim and criminal met through Craigslist. And of course there are many lesser scams that go unnoticed. E-Bay is much the same, but on a world-wide scale.

Gary Coy will demonstrate how safely to use E-Bay and Craigslist.

Join us at 7:00 P.M., Tuesday, February 26, at The Regional Service Center, 4801 Springfield Street, about a mile west of the Air Force Museum. Click here for a map. The meeting is free and open to the public — bring a friend.

MINUTES are normally published about two months late, because Minutes of the previous month must be approved by the Trustees at their meeting the next month. For example, the Minutes for November were reviewed by the Trustees at their December meeting. Once approved, the corrected Minutes are then published in this month's (February's) DATABUS.

EDITOR'S NOTE: My thanks to an alert reader who noticed that the Minutes of the October Trustees' meeting had not been printed. We're supplying them below. The November Minutes follow.

THE AIR FORCE MUSEUM FOUNDATION (AFMF) is pleased to announce an upgrade to the Air Force Museum's giant screen theatre to digital 3D. AFMF has partnered with D3D Cinema (D3D) to provide a state-of-the-art digital 3D system featuring dual Barco 4K projectors, Qube's "Xi" integrated media blocks, MasterImage 3D, and a premium 7.1 surround system from QSC Audio. In addition to supporting higher frame rates, the system will be capable of true 4K-3D playback at bitrates that far exceed industry standards for conventional cinema. The theatre will also feature state of the art accessibility technology by Doremi, including hearing-impaired/visually-impaired audio devices, and the CaptiView personal closed captioning system.

"We are truly honored to be working with the Air Force Museum Foundation, one of the nation's great institutional venues," said Don Kempf, president and founder of D3D Cinema. "Flight-themed films occupy a special place in the history of the giant screen medium, and we believe that this theatre conversion represents a significant milestone in the accelerating conversion of our industry from film to digital."

The new Digital 3D Theatre is set to re-open the first week in March.

The First Annual Reel Stuff of Aviation film festival will mark the grand reopening of the giant-screen theater of the Air Force Museum from April 12 through 14. The festival will offer feature films, documentaries, and broadcast programming — each presented by a filmmaker or historian connected with the production.
